Subject: Review of boundary between GCC and NLC - Cardowan Steps

Good Afternoon,

I am writing to outline my reasons as to why there should be consideration for a change in Local Authority from GCC to NLC.

A boundary change was carried out on the estate across the road from the Bellway development (a persimmon homes development). The rationale for this changing should be no different from the Beltway development. It seems you drive through North Lanarkshire to reach a GCC boundary and this is heavily disputed by all Glasgow taxis as they challenged the boundary every time there was a drop off until the boundary charges stopped.

Council Services - refuse collection... there is no sense in large bin lorries travelling through NLC to empty our bins when there is a natural flow to the refuse on the new Bellway estate and across the road in the persimmon development . Why should our properties be any different and have different refuse collection . It's not economic or ecological.

Schooling. - why impose children attending schools some distance away and far from their friends who live around the corner. Why fund a separate bus service to collect children to take them to schools within the Glasgow council district.

Health care, midwifery, nursing care . - why impose significant travel on employees and patients increasing costs and inconvenience for all parties.

The rear border backing into Dunlop Crescent and Dunlop Gardens needs to be realigned to that of the factored land. The current proposal should mirror that of the factored land space which includes a strip of land at the rear of the properties.

Why have factored land running across two council boundaries. This will cause unnecessary administration and potentially mixed permissions arising from any change applications made by the factor company. It is more sensible that the whole estate has the same council interpretations to protect the look and feel of the estate.

Thank you for taking my concerns into consideration of your review.

Kind Regards
Gillian McLaughlin
